

The Holocaust Experience: The Camps

	Loss of Control/Identity	Living Conditions: Food	Living Conditions: Filth and Disease	Living Conditions: Hard Labor	Dread and Death Immersion	Personal Responses
Gerda Weissman Klein All But My Life	clothes taken	beatings for stolen food gift of raspberry more food for work		exhausting hours physically demanding benefit of reassignment	fear of "penalties" - particularly physical violence	making friends thinking of better times thinking of going home
Primo Levi Survival in Auschwitz	social status by triangle strict routine dictated	difference in top and bottom soup save every crumb	routine for lice/washing importance of shoes	working in the open some skilled workers work while light	gallows fear of stealing fear of breaking rules	'clean' to remain human power to refuse consent
Marion Blumenthal Lazan Four Perfect Pebbles		food better before 1944 when camp was for political prisoners food worse in 1944 as Jews flooded into camp	too many people inadequate latrines killing lice typhus		smell of death too many bodies roll calls dogs tripped over the dead	trying to stay clean steal food from kitchen
Elie Wiesel Night	life controlled by bell numbers used, no names	father organized food rations got smaller	work injuries dangers of operations dysentery dangerous in hospital	moving heavy stones up before dawn belief work would save	fear of selections	organizing food hope - another selection friends keep spirits up faith/religion kindness of others
